Seen & Heard Around Murray

The joys of eating out at home. There we were Friday evening again for some reason, every body else gone off some where. We and the wife sat there bushed from the day's work and supper yet to be eaten. Why not, we why notted, call old Wylie Treabhorn and get him to bring some catfish out here. And, this is what we did. We put on the little old tea kettle and whopped up some hot water for tea or coffee and when the catfish and hush puppies arrived, we just sat down before the TV and all the time this girl was going through the eulphoria of a "fix" and while the mother, father and daughter were fighting it out in the family den, we sat there and ate our catfish. The catfish was much better than the TV offering. Along with the catfish we got some baked potatoes in long slivers which were chomping good.

Darn pack of dogs out in the back yard early Saturday morning woke us up with their barking and scuffling around.

Alcohol Education Center To Be Established At University

Funding has been approved for a $37,500 federal government planning grant to establish a pilot center for alcohol education at Murray State University.

First District U. S. Congressman Frank A. Stubblefield of Murray notified university officials Friday that the Division of Alcohol Studies of the National Institute of Mental Health has authorized funding for an 18-month period.

Approved without funding last year, the unique program is designed to develop a curriculum and teaching aids to instruct students in school about alcohol and alcoholism and to train other individuals who will utilize practical information in their professions through an "inter-disciplinary approach."

To be directed by Dr. Charles A. Homra, chairman of the Murray State psychology department, the project will include credit courses and units in at least seven departments—psychology, home economics, nursing, education, management, social sciences and health and physical education.

Besides the value to college students, the project involves practical application through seminars and workshops for nurses, social workers, lawyers, law enforcement officers, clergymen, businessmen and people of other professions. They will be provided current information as an aid in the performance of their everyday duties.

Homra said the grant will enable Murray State to make a vital contribution to society by initiating a project that has not been done at any other college or university in the country.

"It is exciting to think about the potential involved in this kind of undertaking," Homra added, "and to try to visualize the scope of the impact not only locally but nationally."

Dr. James Shrewsbury, director of research at Murray State, acknowledged the "perseverance of Congressman Stubblefield over the past six or eight months" to get money allocated to implement the project.

"He has beat the bushes to get the program moving," Shrewsbury continued, "and his success has inspired confidence that the planning period will warrant funding for the entire five-year program as specified in the original grant application proposal."

Homra said the search will begin immediately for a center coordinator and a secretary. He said he hopes to add additional staff as the program expands and is refunded.

Persons Are Treated At Emergency Room

Four other persons, suffering from injuries sustained in accidents, were treated at the emergency room of the Murray-Calloway County Hospital over the weekend.

Thomas Pritchett of Murray Route One, age three, was treated for a contusion to the foot at 2:15 p.m. Sunday. He was injured in a car accident.

Friday at 8:45 a.m. two children were treated who had been injured in a bicycle accident. Sheryl McKinney, age 7, and Terry McKinney, age 9, both of 510 North 7th Street, Murray, were treated. Sheryl had an abrasion to the forehead and upper lip and Terry had an abrasion to the right cheek, shoulder, and right knee.

NIXON TO ADDRESS NATION ON POSTAL STRIKE TODAY

MAIL PILES UP IN NEW YORK CITY. Bags of mail are stacked high at New York's Central Post Office during a wildcat strike by postal workers in the metropolitan area.

New York And Chicago Still Without Mail

By United Press International

President Nixon arranged to make a nationwide radio and television broadcast today to explain to the public how he proposes to deal with the wildcat postal strike.

The President called in his top aides, including cabinet members, at a little after 8 a.m. EST to discuss what to do about the strike. The primary decision was whether, when and to what extent troops would be used to move the mail.

The White House said the television networks had granted Nixon time to talk to the nation at 2 p.m. EST.

Early Hint

White House Press Secretary Ronald Ziegler refused to characterize the President's statement in any way, but Nixon hinted earlier that he would use federal troops to operate the nation's postal system if the strike did not end today.

Nixon has kept in close touch with the postal work stoppage throughout the weekend. Labor Secretary George P. Shultz and Postmaster General Winton M. Blount spent most of the morning at the White House.

The administration had offered to begin negotiations on a pay raise and other strikers' grievances this afternoon provided that an operable postal system was restored.

However, as of 11 a.m. EST, the Post Office Department said 168,403 postal employees were still on strike. These included carriers and others in New York and Chicago who spurned the administration proposal.

Nixon invited top congressional leaders of both parties to the White House for a discussion of the growing crisis in advance of his broadcast statement to the nation.

Shultz arranged to pass the word to postal union officials at a meeting in his office about the same time.

Letter To Editor

Dear Mr. Williams:
Our second grade class at Robertson School is very much concerned about the pollution in our city and nation. We have been studying about it in our class.

We counted the papers, bottles and cans we found on the ground and in the streets between school and our homes. We were surprised to see how dirty our streets and yards are. Will you please ask the people in our community to be more careful about throwing things down and to put trash in the proper places, so our town will be a nicer place in which to live.

Yours Truly,
Mrs. Taylor's Second Grade

Marquette Blasts St. Johns 65-53 for NIT Championship

By VITO STELLINO
UPI Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UPI)—"I felt we could have won either the NCAA or the NIT," outspoken Al McGuire declared. He was taking a trophy home from New York this weekend, but you'll never convince him that he shouldn't have been taking home a trophy from College Park, Md.

McGuire's smooth Marquette team destroyed St. Johns, McGuire's alma-mater, 65-53, Saturday to win the 33rd National Invitation Tournament and wind up the season with a 26-3 mark. It was an impressive win that bolstered McGuire's contention that his team is much better than it is being given credit for.

Of course, no one will ever know how far Marquette could have gone in the NCAA, but the Warriors certainly proved in

Bruins Win Fourth Cage Championship

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (UPI)—The UCLA Bruins today stood colossally atop the college basketball world in the same unbeatable fashion as the Yankees once ruled baseball and the Green Bay Packers dominated pro football.

By defeating Jacksonville, 80-69, Saturday, the poised and polished Bruins won their fourth consecutive NCAA championship and their sixth in the last seven years. And the prospects are that the Californians under the tutelage of John Wooden will be back in championship contention next year.

In defeating Jacksonville, the Bruins outshot the highest scoring team in the country. They also out-rebounded the Dolphins, the tallest team in college competition, with two seven-footers in their line-up.

Sydney Wicks, named Most Valuable Player in the finals, outdueled Jacksonville's 7-2 Artis Gilmore off the boards while giving away six inches in height to his opponent.

He also held Gilmore to 19 points as the Bruins held Jacksonville to their second lowest point total in 28 games this season.

The poise of the Bruins was impressive. Jacksonville rushed into an early nine-point lead but the defending champs were unflappable. They methodically whittled down the margin, pulled ahead with less than three minutes remaining in the half, and led at intermission, 41-36.

Both teams were cold in the first three minutes of the second half. But the Bruins sharpshooters began finding the range, both long and short, and the outcome was never in doubt.

New Mexico State held off St. Bonaventure, 79-73, to take third place in the NCAA finals.

Kathy Whitworth On Top In Orange Blossom Sunday

ST. PETERSBURGH, Fla. (UPI)—A disastrous 11-over-par 82 posted on the final round by young Sue Roberts allowed veteran Kathy Whitworth to pick up the first place money Sunday in the 17th annual Orange Blossom Classic.

Miss Whitworth added $2,775 to her record winnings in the Ladies Professional Golf Association (LPGA).

Miss Roberts, a sophomore on the LPGA tour and the second youngest lady pro at 21, had held a one-stroke lead going into the final round. But she double-bogeyed three holes Sunday on the rain-puddled 6,288-yard Sunset Golf and Country Club course.

Miss Whitworth began the day in a second-place tie with Carol Mann and Mary Mills and for a while it looked like there might be a repeat of the Burdine's sudden-death playoff in Miami when Miss Mann emerged the winner.

But Miss Mann blew her chance on the 17th when she overshot the green.

Tied for third place at 219 were Marilyn Smith and Joe Ann Prentice.

Pro Cage Draft War Opens Today

NEW YORK (UPI)—The National and American Basketball Associations renew their war for players from the collegiate ranks today with the fledgling ABA carrying a head start into the separate drafts.

The two leagues, unable to get together in merger talks, go their separate ways in the draft—the older league starting from scratch and the ABA resuming its draft with the fifth round. The ABA conducted four rounds of a secret draft last January prior to its All-Star Game in Indianapolis.

From that secret draft came announcements by ABA clubs that Rick Mount of Purdue had signed with Indiana; Mike Maly of Davidson with Pittsburgh; Charley Scott of North Carolina with Washington and Dan Issel and Mike Pratt of the University of Kentucky with the Kentucky Colonels.

Two of the biggest names in college basketball this season, Bob Lanier of St. Bonaventure and Pete Maravich of Louisiana State, are expected to be first round choices in both leagues.

While the New York Nets hold the ABA draft rights on the St. Bonaventure player, Lanier is believed to lean strongly toward the NBA.

The NBA has reportedly made a five-year $1.2 million offer to Lanier, with payment to be spread over 15 years.

The Detroit Pistons, by virtue of finishing last in the NBA's Eastern Division and winning a coin-flip with the West's worst club, the San Diego Rockets, have first choice in the NBA. The Rockets indicated last week they were interested in landing Lanier.

The Carolina Cougars hold ABA draft rights for Maravich who scored 46 points a game during the regular season and wound up as the most prolific scorer in major college

ANDRETTI WINS SEBRING RUN

SEBRING, Fla. (UPI)—The next time actor Steve McQueen comes to the defense of the status of Porsche in international racing, he'll likely have the five-liter factory power to match Ferrari-jumping Mario Andretti.

McQueen and co-driver Peter Revson, nosed out by 23.8 seconds by the charging Andretti for the 12-hour Sebring endurance run Sunday, is the choice to drive one of the factory Porsche 917s in the 24 hours of Le Mans in June.

This time, McQueen won't be tugging around an orthopedic, cast-like boot on the clutch foot the star broke in six places in a Nevada motorcycle race two weeks ago.

The Ferrari victory was still in doubt after Andretti hopped into the then third-place car of Ignazio Giunti of Italy and Nino Vaccarella of Sicily, and sped to a 45-second lead over the McQueen-Revson Porsche with Revson at the wheel.

"It felt like I was running out of gas," Andretti recalled. "I switched, put my reserve on, then I thought maybe I was just mistaken and I switched back."

"It cut off completely," the champagne-soaked Andretti laughed after the race.

The reserve carried the Indianapolis 500 winner to the pits for a dash of fuel and he was back on the 5.2 miles circuit of hairpin-bent concrete and asphalt barely ahead of socialist-sportsman Revson.

Andretti outran the year-old race record of 103.363 m.p.h. in the winning Ford GT-40 with an average speed of 107.290 m.p.h. and set a new lap record of 248.

McQueen missed his team's final NIT game Saturday because of an ankle injury and a bruised hip incurred earlier in the NIT.

The NBA draft will be conducted in a 17-city telephone hookup with the league office in New York.

By United Press International

The 1969-70 National Basketball Association regular season ended Sunday, and the 82-game campaign marked a "changing of the guard" year.

For the first time in 20 years, the Boston Celtics, rulers of pro basketball, failed to make the league playoffs. Without Bill Russell, and with the toll of years finally making that extra step drag just a trifle too much, the Celtics finished a dismal sixth in the Eastern Division, at 34-48 for a .415 percentage, 26 games behind the division kingpin, New York.

But the emergence of the Knicks at the head of the division and indeed at the top of the league standings with a remarkable 60-22 for .732 may in itself be transitory. The blistering start which put them beyond the reach of all others faltered near the end, although their talented center Willis Reed was chosen as the Most Valuable Player and the smooth machine hand-tooled by former General Manager Eddie Donovan never really was in danger of falling all the way back to the pack.

Yet, the Milwaukee Bucks could not be ignored, and the shadow of Lew Alcindor is already falling over the dominance of the New Yorkers. Alcindor went through the usual rookie apprenticeship, but that apprenticeship was quickly served, and by season's end he had led Milwaukee to a second-place finish in the East, and the second-best overall NBA record at 56-26 for .683, only four games behind the Knicks.

The Western Division produced a champion in the Atlanta Hawks, who with the indomitable Lou Hudson, held off the Los Angeles Lakers to win by two games. In the progress, the Atlanta team posted a winning season series over the Knicks.

For Los Angeles, it was a bitter year, but one that showed Jerry West at his undeniable best. With the veteran Walt Chamberlain sidelined most of the campaign by injury, West's shooting, passing and leadership almost pulled the Lakers all the way to the title.

So completely did the top four teams dominate the league, that the drop off to Baltimore in the East was 10 games and nine games to third place co-holders Chicago and Phoenix in the West.

COURT MEETS

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Supreme Court meets at 10 a.m. EST today to hand down opinions and orders.

Since the court has run out of cases which are ready to be heard, there will be no arguments this week.

Sports Parade

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Writer

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (UPI)—A "buddy" of Milt Pappas got a lot of mileage out of this one right after the Atlanta pitcher left with some other ball players to visit servicemen in Viet Nam last fall.

"Hey, did you hear about Pappas leaving for Viet Nam?" He went around asking. "They had to take him out in San Francisco."

Pappas didn't hear the gag until only the other day. When he did, he didn't exactly fall off the bench laughing.

Big joke. "That's the Braves 30-year-old right hander, rather flatly. 'That's a reputation I got a long time ago, that I'm only a five inning pitcher, and I have to get people to stop thinking that way. It gets on your nerves hearing it all of the time. I've gotten to the point now where I just ignore it. You know I have won 156 ball games. I didn't do that with mirrors.'"

The record book bears out Pappas. It shows he has averaged 14 victories a year from the time he broke in with Baltimore back in 1958 until last year and that's not bad.

But the book also shows the last time he ever completed more than six games in a single season was five years ago. And that's not good. He completed only one game last year when he was 6-10 for the Braves and that's not too good either.

"Last year was disastrous," Pappas concedes. "It was the first real bad one I've had in 12 years. I started out feeling good and throwing good and then got involved in a lot of low scoring ball games. I figured it out, that in the first 15 games I pitched, the club scored 1.8 runs a game while I was pitching."

Milt Pappas has a good head for figures. He figures out things like that. He also did some other figuring and concluded his job as Atlanta's player representative was wearing him down. So shortly after he came down here this spring he stood up and made a brief speech.

"Gentlemen, you'd better start looking for another player rep," he said. "I'm resigning."

Pappas feels part of his trouble last year was that he was thinking about the problems of Atlanta's 24 other players. Many other players feel the same way as Pappas and say essentially the same thing. "Ball players do not discriminate. They don't only bug the front office. They bug their player reps as well. I have to start thinking about myself for a change," he says.

Starter? "This is the first time I've ever come down to spring training without the assurance of being a starting pitcher. I thought about it all winter and it scared me."

Pappas had some other problems also. The restaurant he owned in Baltimore with a partner wasn't going well and when he got back from Viet Nam he called the partner and discussed the possibility of closing the place. Two weeks later the partner committed suicide.

"That's the kind of year it was," Pappas says.

"Now I've gotta go out and show people I can do it. The Braves were very good to me. They could've cut me a lot but they didn't. I know whom I have to thank for that. Paul Richards. You hear a lotta things about him but he's a fair man. He'll do anything for a ball player. He never hurts any of 'em. The good things you never hear about Paul Richards."

Pappas may have resigned as player rep but he's still a strong believer in the Players Association and in Marvin Miller, who is doing an extraordinarily fine job for all the players. Pappas, however, also believes in the general structure of the game itself.

"Ball players ought to get down on their knees every night and thank God for what baseball has given them," he says. "It's a fantastic game."

Milt Pappas is like that. He figures out a lot of things well.

Pilots Franchise Could Be Destroyed By "Tug Of War"

SEATTLE (UPI)—An American League representative says the Seattle Pilots baseball franchise could be "destroyed" in the legal tug-of-war which resumes in court today.

The state, city and attorney Alfred J. Schweppe are seeking an injunction halting the proposed transfer of the Pilots to Milwaukee.

The American League and Pacific Northwest Sports Inc., owners of the team, are trying to clear the way for a shift before the season opens next month.

At the opening of the hearing before Judge James W. Mifflin Friday, an American League attorney Alexander Hadden said an injunction stopping the transfer would not save baseball for Seattle.

"It will destroy the franchise," he said.

Too Much Money Invested
Lawyers for the city argued that the area had invested too much money, primarily in plans for a domed stadium, and too much effort to lose the club after only one season.

A temporary restraining order barring the sale of the club and its approval by the American League is still in effect, pending outcome of the present court action.

Tuesday in U.S. District Court there will be a hearing on a petition by the Pilots owners asking that the club's franchise be sold under the Bankruptcy Act to Milwaukee for $10.8 million.

The state, city and Schweppe will be required to show cause why they should not be enjoined from interfering with the sale of the franchise.

Referee Sets Date

Federal Bankruptcy Referee Sidney C. Volinn has set March 30 for consideration of the application to sell the franchise.

And if all this isn't enough, the state has filed an anti-trust suit, and Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., threatens to have the Senate Commerce Committee, which he heads, hold hearings on baseball's relation to anti-trust laws.

And finally, the firm which helped develop the Pilots' Tempe, Ariz., spring training site has filed suit against the Pilots owners, Baseball Facilities, Inc., claims the owners failed to put up more than $1 million promised for development of the facility.

Mrs. June Smith Is Speaker At Meeting Preschool Mothers

Mrs. June Smith, regional training officer for Headstart and associate professor of education at Murray State University, discussed childhood discipline and presented two films related to this topic at the mothers' meeting of the St. Leo's Cooperative Preschool held at the Community Center on March 18.

Mrs. Smith defined discipline as "a child in control of his own feelings." Contrary to the popular notion that discipline is one person's control over another, Mrs. Smith described it as "in built" — a self growth process. The films showed actual experiences in Head Start programs with emphasis on situations showing children acquiring self discipline.

Mrs. Ginny Lyon, president, announced that the next meeting will be April 22 since spring vacation occurs during the third week of April. She also requested that mothers help clean the outdoor play yard when the weather permits.

Mrs. Laverne Russell, preschool teacher, urged mothers to be prompt in bringing their children to the school March 24 at two p.m. for the German measles vaccination.

Hostess for the evening was Mrs. Mary Ann Layne.

Pollution Written About As Early As 1940 By Writers

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor

NEW YORK (UPI)—Everybody talks about pollution of our environment. Now, almost everybody from politician to picket is trying to do something about it.

But long before pollution became a household word and the public became so acutely aware of pollutant dangers, there were the likes of Rachel Carson, the biologist whose writings warned that man was destroying nature with his insecticides. There were the likes of many others, famous and not so famous, who were warning man that he was choking himself to death with waste.

As early as the 1940's, Stan Bulpitt, of Darien, Conn., was aware and trying to figure ways to handle waste, but putting it to work again for man without hazard to him, "Recycling" is Bulpitt's word.

for it. One of the methods he's using is as simple as what any green thumb in the family knows—the compost heap puts waste to work, as plant food.

But Bulpitt has gone far beyond the backyard. He's selling cities on the idea of giant composts to replace or at least reduce the job of the incinerator, which leaves ash (waste), and the ordinary garbage dump.

To date, the idea of the compost has been approved by Scarsdale, N.Y., a wealthy suburb of about 20,000. The city now composts the town's leaves each fall instead of polluting the surroundings by burning, dumping or burying them. The compost eventually is used for fertilization of public lands.

A citywide compost can take almost any waste, Bulpitt says, with the exception of rags, plastics and metals. Which means that it can turn into fertilizer such wastes as paper, leaves and what-have-you.

Friends, I will give my witness of salvation for the soul that has been made known to me from above. With my being buried in water for the water-baptism as is requested, then with my hearing the Spiritual voice telling me that thy soul was saved by the Grace of God. I will give my witness of there not being anyone on earth to save, that can witness of your soul being saved without the witness to gove of the body being buried in water for the water baptism first. Now as I received the baptism in water as is requested in the Methodist church, I will ask all to believe the Methodist church is accepted as a branch of the church with Jesus Christ as same as the other branches of our church that is built of man here on earth. I pray for all to seek for salvation for your soul: Amen. —Rev. Marvin Smith

Dear Abby

Wife speaks out on fidelity

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: The women in our small club were having a frank discussion about husbands stepping out, and I made the statement that I could forgive my husband if I caught him stepping out on me (I mean a one-night stand, not a serious affair of any duration), but I wouldn't put up with his spending money on another woman when there were things his family needed.

They all thought I was some kind of nut. Please don't misunderstand, Abby. I wouldn't encourage my husband to step out on me, but as long as I get my share of affection at home, I don't see why I should throw him out if he has a little extra fun at no expense to his family. But with money, it's a different story. Just let him deprive me or the children of anything money can buy because he spent it on another woman, and I'd lock him out. How do you feel about this, Abby?

DEAR MARGE: For the first 50 years I'd demand 100 per cent fidelity. After that, I'd be a little more generous.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have some close friends. We have agreed to be the guardians for their children in case something happens to them, and they shall do the same for ours.

These people are dedicated to a religious movement in which teams of lay people spend the week-end in a church, leading prayer groups and church services.

We have a lot of respect and admiration for their devotion to their religion, but do not wish to participate. So far, we have always been able to come up with a valid excuse for not accepting their invitations to go to these church meetings, but we fear the day when we've run out of excuses, and there will be a showdown.

How can we get out of going and still maintain our friendship with these people? KENTUCKIANS

DEAR KENTUCKIANS: Don't wait for a showdown. Tell your friends that you do not care to participate in their religious activities. If you are sufficiently "close" for a reciprocal guardianship agreement, it seems to me you should be able to speak candidly without fear of damaging your friendship.

DEAR ABBY: When I was 13 years old, two other girls and I were caught taking a few cheap items from the cosmetic counter of a department store. They took us to the manager's office and we had to give them our names and addresses. We were told that they were going to call our parents, but fortunately, they never did.

Of course we gave back everything we had taken, and we promised that we would never set foot in that store again, and I know, I never did. We also promised we'd never steal another thing. I kept that promise.

Now I am 22 years old and in filling out a job application, I understand the question "Have you ever been arrested?" is asked. If I come across it, how should I answer?

SANTA ANA

DEAR SANTA ANA: Say NO. You were only caught and warned. That is not the same as being "arrested."

Today's Stock Market

NEW YORK (UPI)—Stocks opened mixed in moderate trading today on the New York Stock Exchange.

The postal strike added another depressing element to an already weak market last week and one analyst wondered out loud "how we're going to do business." Volume dropped below 8 million shares Friday.

Meanwhile, investors apparently were still awaiting some dramatic evidence that prime interest rate is coming down or that the Federal Reserve Board has eased monetary restraints.

Shortly after the opening the UPI marketwide indicator was up 0.06 per cent. Declines led advances, 144 to 112. The Dow Jones average of 30 blue chip industrials was off more than a point.

American Telephone lost 1/4 to 51 1/2, Sears 1/8 to 66 1/2 and International Nickel 1/4 to 44 1/2. Boise Cascade added 1/8 to 61 1/2. In the oil Gulf was steady at 26 1/2. Texaco lost 1/8 to 27 1/2. Jersey Standard 1/4 to 55 and Occidental 1/8 to 22. Mobil and California Standard each gave up 1/4 to 40 1/2 and 44, respectively.

Ford at 44 1/2 and American Motors at 10 each gained 1/8. Chrysler lost 1/8 to 25 1/2. In the steel U.S. Steel was unchanged at 36 1/2. Inland rose 1/8 to 27 1/2. Bethlehem lost 1/4 to 27 1/2.

"There are two days in every week about which we should not worry, two days which should be kept free from fear and apprehension.

"One of these days is YESTERDAY, with its mistakes and cares, its faults and blunders, its aches and pains. YESTERDAY has passed forever beyond our control.

"All the money in the world cannot bring back YESTERDAY. We cannot undo a single act we performed; we cannot erase a single word we said, YESTERDAY is gone.

"The other day we should not worry about is TOMORROW, with its possible adversaries, its burdens, its large promise and poor performance. TOMORROW is beyond our immediate control.

"TOMORROW'S sun will rise, either in splendor or behind a mask of clouds—but it will rise. Until it does, we have no stake in TOMORROW, for it is as yet unborn.

"This leaves only one day—TODAY. Any man can fight the battles of just one day. It is only when you add the burdens of those two awful eternities—YESTERDAY and TOMORROW—that we break down.

"It is not the Experience of Today that drives men mad—it is remorse or bitterness for something which happened YESTERDAY and the dread of what TOMORROW may bring."

Postal Strike

working several days in preparation for the possibility of helping move the mail, Nixon had said Saturday at a news conference that he would carry out his responsibility to see that the mails go through.

He made it clear he would not negotiate while the strike was still going on.

Use of federal troops for any emergency has been rare and they had never been used in the past to take the places of civil servants paid by the federal government.

The president of the National Association of Letter Carriers, whose chapters in New York started the wildcat walkouts last Wednesday, said he hoped Nixon would use only his imagination to resolve the dispute.

Urges Return
James H. Rademacher has urged consistently that his people return to work and give the government five days to come up with satisfactory movement on pay raise proposals.

In response to the administration's request and that of Rademacher, according to post office surveys, 51,116 strikers returned to their jobs this morning in Boston, Minneapolis, San Francisco, Cincinnati, New York State, Philadelphia and in the Chicago area.

In the New York region, 53,667 employees were reported still out. However, 3,396 had returned in Buffalo, N.Y.

Approximately 25,000 employees were still out in Philadelphia and surrounding towns while some 12,000 had returned to work in Pittsburgh and 14 area offices.

needed in filling out a questionnaire that is incomplete. At every fifth household, the census taker will seek answers to additional questions covering population and housing characteristics that are being asked of a 20 percent sample of the Nation's population. The sample questions include inquiries on country of birth, schooling, employment, income, and related items. The additional housing questions relate to rent or value of dwelling, heating equipment, water supply, and other facilities and equipment.

The District Manager pointed out that information about individuals and their homes furnished to the Census Bureau is kept confidential under Federal law. Only statistical totals and averages are published. No individual person can be identified in published reports and census information cannot be given to any other Government agency, local officials, tax collectors, police, health, welfare, or school officers, nor to anyone else.
